RIP VAN WINKLE.

In presenting that ever-popular comedy success, Rip Van Winkle, for the night of May 12th, Manager Robertson has provided local amusement lovers with an attraction of unusual merit. The play is one that everyone enjoys for it is refined and full of real life. Mr. Bert C. Wood, who will appear in the title role, has achieved an enviable reputation in the east and his present western tour is but a repetition of his success in the territory in which he is so well known. He has been identified with some of the best known attractions, and during his three years tour with Rip Van Winkle has earned unstinted praise from press and public. He has stepped into the path so long travelled by Joseph Jefferson, and his conception and interpretation of the part has placed him in the front rank in his profession. Mr. Wood is ably supported by a metropolitan company of ladies and gentlemen. The setting of this piece is good. The scenic scenery, the elegant costumes combined with the picturesque effects cannot fail to please the most critical observer. The Regina Standard has the following to say of the Rip Van Winkle Co., which is booked here for Monday next:

"The Rip Van Winkle Co. played here four nights last week. This is one of the best troupes seen here for a long time. They grew in popularity as the nights passed. Their presentation of Rip Van Winkle was particularly realistic. All their productions were splendidly staged. They carry lots of scenery and are first class entertainers. Should they visit Regina again they will be kindly received and liberally patronized."

Should any of the provincial premiers find it convenient to avail themselves of this invitation, places will be provided for themselves and some lady members of their family at the various ceremonies connected with the coronation, and every effort will be made to ensure that in all other respects their visit shall be a pleasant one."

THE TERRITORIAL ELECTIONS

The general Territorial elections now in progress are a political event of the first importance to the Northwest. There is a tendency to think lightly of the importance of good legislation and sound administration regarding matters coming within the control of the local legislature and governments of the Dominion. Local or provincial political affairs are overshadowed by the wider reaching affairs of the nation coming under the control of the federal authority, and yet it is no exaggeration to say that, inasmuch as local administration touches the people individually more generally and more closely than federal legislation, its quality is of greater importance to them. This is true in the case of the province and it is equally true in the case of the Territories. There is not after all so very much difference between the present political condition of the Territories and that which prevails in the provinces; for if the Territorial legislature has not the power to mortgage the future as have the legislatures of the provinces, inasmuch as the present is a period of foundation-laying in the great West, the responsibility is much greater on the Territorial legislature to the present time than on that of any province of the Dominion. Charged with control of educational matters, of municipal affairs, of public works, and of property and civil rights it is of the highest importance that our local government should be in the hands of reliable men holding a policy suitable to the peculiar conditions of our country. At the present time the government which has controlled the affairs of the Territories for many years is appealing once more to the electorate for endorsement for the past and a mandate for the future. It would be well for the electors to understand that this is the issue which will be decided by the election. That it is something more than a mere choice between the personality of the various candidates. Because there has been no political turmoil in the Territories many people jump to the conclusion that this is because of our peculiar conditions and not because of the men who have had control of our affairs. That idea is the greatest possible mistake. Our local government handles a very large amount of public money—it not altogether as large proportionately as the local government of the provinces, yet sufficiently large to constitute a most important trust and to leave room for wide differences of opinion as to the best methods of expenditure to produce desirable results. "Happy is the country that has no history," and the Territories are to be congratulated because there has been so little of that friction which constitutes history and which so often means effort ill directed, or effort directed by improper motives, on the part of those charged with the direction of public affairs. There are no scandals against the present Northwest government; there is no allegation of lack of energy on their part in using all the resources at their command for the benefit and advancement of the Territories at large; there is no question as to their sincerity of purpose or as to the direction of their efforts. It is a plain matter of fact that the Northwest government does more work for less money and does it more efficiently than the government of any province in the Dominion. It is a matter of fact that the people of the Territories receive from the local treasury a larger proportion of the cost to them of education than do the people of any of the provinces. It is a matter of fact that a larger proportion of the total revenue is expended directly in the construction of useful public works, directly benefiting the people, than is the case in any of the provinces. It is a fact that instead of the cumbersome expensive duplicate municipal system of Ontario and some of the other provinces, a simple system of local taxation for public improvements has been adopted, whereby the largest possible share of the taxes raised is expended for the direct improvement of the public roads. Although owing to scattered settlement and vast distances there is greater difficulty in administering the affairs of the Territories than in any province, it is a matter of fact and is universally admitted that the administration is more efficient and less expensive than in any province. This is a most satisfactory condition of affairs. It did not occur by accident nor did it occur by force of circumstances. It is as it is, because the men who were charged with control were as they were and are as they are.

If the people of the Territories desire a continuance of present policy and administration it will be necessary to support candidates who are prepared to support that policy and administration, or, in other words, to support the Haultain government. That government has been in office for a considerable term of years, and it may seem that their hold on power is such that it is in no danger of being shaken; that one supporter more or less makes no difference, and that people may therefore freely consider the personality of the candidates rather than the policy which they will support. There could be no greater mistake if as the result of these general elections there should be returned a majority opposed to the present government. The people have no guarantee as to what they would get in the way of legislation or administration, in such a case. They might be fortunate and they might be very unfortunate. The example of Manitoba and British Columbia is an evidence of the danger resulting from provincial affairs getting into incompetent or untrustworthy hands. The Territories cannot afford at the present time to take chances on a change in policy or administration not knowing what that change is to be. If the government here had been the subject of attack on some point of policy upon which their opponents were pledged then it would be a fair matter for consideration whether the policy of the government or the opposition should be supported. But when we have on the one hand a reliable administration and a well defined policy—defined not by windy promises but by the record of any description, the only safe course is to support that which we know rather than take chances on that which we don't know.

On the question of provincial autonomy and increase of subsidy the position of the government is clear and logical. The legislature having decided that certain services are to be provided for on a certain basis the government proceeds to provide for those services and asks from the Dominion the sums necessary. There being a question as to whether the amount asked for will be granted, and the further question to be answered as to whether the Territories are entitled to the amount asked or not, the local government says to that of the Dominion, "Give us the money necessary for our requirements as we understand them, or give us provincial organization with allowances on the basis of the other provinces with such additions as our special circumstances justify. In order that there should be no doubt about the position of the local government they prepared a proposition for provincial organization in detail which was submitted to the Dominion government. Until that proposition is disposed of either one way or the other, the local government is in the strongest possible logical position to demand such increase of subsidy from time to time as changing conditions make necessary. The position is moderate and yet strong and is worthy the consideration of the people of the Territories. Considering the mass of eastern public opinion that has to be influenced before an increase of subsidy or provincial settlement on a proper basis can be secured, it is better that a sound position should be quietly taken at the beginning, than that dependence should be placed on extreme language for carrying the point advocated. In all features of their policy the local government has shown coolness, moderation and persistence. Because they have not achieved perfection in this or that particular under conditions which are continually changing, gives no grounds for opposing them, while on the other hand their consistent policy and what they have achieved entitles them to a hearty support and not the less because what has been done has been done quietly without advertising and without consideration of personal or selfish interest. It is to be hoped that for many years the Territories will be fortunate enough to have its local affairs administered on as careful lines of policy, and as efficiently as during the past four years. Whether that shall be the case or not depends very greatly on the result of the elections now in progress.

A. Simons has purchased a high class photograph, and promises in the near future to give a public entertainment in aid of the church fund. Those who have already had the pleasure of seeing it to pronounce it the best ever heard.

Charles Flinoff, who has been absent for several months, returned to his home this week. His many friends are pleased to have him home again.

Ms. Lillian Wallis, who has been attending collegiate in Edmonton, is spending a few days under the parental roof. She leaves the end of the week in charge of a school near Star. We congratulate the section in securing the services of so efficient a teacher.

J. Turnbull, of Strathcona, spent a few days here looking after his property.

Mr. Gibson, of Sturgeon, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horton.

We are pleased to state that Mr. A. Edmond, who has been so dangerously ill with pneumonia, is recovering.

The Endeavourers' purpose holding a reception at the residence of Mr. Robt. Johnson, on the evening of May 23rd. We are sure this will be a most enjoyable affair as the committee of management are making elaborate preparations to make it a success. The congregations each Sabbath are increasing so that the little school house is fast overflowing, and seating accommodation is very inadequate. The Endeavourers' society decided to take the matter in hand and raise funds for providing more seats, hence this call.

Alph. Smith sold four head of fat calves this week for $210.

E. Corcoran is erecting a commodious frame house on his quarter.

Bottom Fell Out.

Fort William, May 3.—Last evening, while loading the steamer Arrabin at the C. N. B. elevator, Fort Arthur, the bottom fell out of one of the shipping bins. Some 5,000 bushels of grain were in the bin at the time, and this heavy weight broke through the floors to the basement. It can be saved. It is not known as yet the cause of the accident. The work of repairing the bin has commenced. This will not in any way retard the work at the elevator.

The Meat Market.

The refusal of the people of the Western States to eat meat, at the prevailing high prices, has created a panic in the markets. The business of Chicago packers is staggered, the demand for dressed meats has fallen 33 and 1-3 per cent.

The packing house of Libby, McNeill and Libby, controlled by the Swifts, discharged 500 men last Saturday and the laying off of men is general all over the stock yards in Chicago.
